

Mr Brown's Bad Day

Last week, Mrs Brown visited an old friend. So Mr Brown was alone in the house and had to do everything on his own.

It all began on Monday evening:

Mr Brown switched the TV on at 10 o'clock. He watched a film about Dracula. Then he went to bed. He dreamed of vampires all night.

Mr Brown woke up on Tuesday morning. He looked at the alarm-clock. Then he noticed that it was already 10 o'clock in the morning. He got up quickly. He ran into the bathroom. He washed and brushed his teeth. After that, he hurried downstairs. But he stumbled over his dog. He fell. He got up quickly. Then he noticed that his nose was bleeding. He went back into the bathroom. He washed his face once again.

Then Mr Brown ran into the kitchen. He had breakfast within five minutes. He rushed outside to the garage. He opened the garage-door and got into his car. Suddenly he noticed that he was still in his pyjamas. So he ran back to the house. He put his clothes on. Again he hurried to his car. He started the engine and drove off. He overran the red traffic lights in Garden Street. A policeman stopped him a minute later. Mr Brown had to pay £ 100. After that he drove straight to his office.

He arrived there at quarter to eleven. His boss, Mr Turner, called him some minutes later. Mr Turner told him that he was very angry. Then Mr Brown began his work in the office. He ruined his Laptop an hour later. Mr Turner told him that he had to pay £ 600 for it.

Mr Brown drove back home at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. He parked his car in the street. Then he went into the house. He sat down in the living-room and read the newspaper. He had dinner at 7 o'clock. Then he went to bed.

When Mrs Brown came home the next day, Mr Brown told her: "Tuesday was a very bad day. It all began on Monday evening.

After I had switched the TV on at 10 o'clock, I watched a film about Dracula.

After I had watched the film about Dracula, I ...

After I had ...

After ..."
